COMMUNITY CHANGE

Since our founding in 1968, the Center for Community Change has been bringing people together across the United States to lift up and empower communities, fight poverty, strengthen the social safety net, and ensure that our democracy fully enfranchises all. In this 50th anniversary year, we renew our commitment to build a more just and inclusive America.

Our 50th anniversary year presents a perfect opportunity to leave your legacy of community change. Join CCC and our Legacy Society of donors, who through their lasting philanthropic contributions, are planting seeds for the next 50 years.

"I have never been more proud of the work of this organization, and never more convinced of its importance, especially in light of the challenges we face to our deepest values and to our democracy itself. We are each part of a lineage of people working to advance social justice that extends thousands of years before we were born and will extend thousands of years after we're gone. That is a sacred responsibility, and I'm committed to supporting it throughout my life and after I'm gone."

–Deepak Bhargava, President, Center for Community Change

"I have been affiliated with the Center for Community Change for more than 30 years because of their unwavering commitment and courageous efforts to improve conditions for poor people, especially people of color in the US. Because of my deep personal dedication to these issues, I cannot think of any organization more deserving of my financial support. In honor of the Center's 50th anniversary, I have made a bequest to the Center to ensure that this critical legacy continues."

–Jane Fox-Johnson
CCC Board Member

"The Center for Community Change has been and always will be a North Star to guide our country toward a more equitable and just future. CCC has 50 years of history on its side - fighting for the values that unite our people, defend democracy and build power for vulnerable communities. I have included a gift to CCC in my estate plan out of gratitude and determination that we all can and will make a difference."
